Global Conversations at UUSF - Sunday, Sept. 10, 12:30 pm to 2:00 pm, MLK Room

We welcome Horst Banskner's description of his recent visit to Ireland, and the changes that have come about in this celebrated and unique little country. Ireland has had a tumultuous history. From its earliest beginnings of Celtic, Viking and Norman invasions, and later, suffering imperialist policies imposed by its neighboring island – yet it has produced an enviable and rich culture and stable, democratic government. Ireland is credited with saving Western Civilization during the Dark Ages, by preserving classical writings in its monasteries. In the last few decades, Ireland has changed tremendously and we may learn from Ireland's transformation!

HAPPENINGS

The European Refugee Crisis. Forum with Richard Hardigan - Sept. 17, 9:30 am, TSK Room

In 2015 over 1.3 million people applied for asylum in Europe. They were escaping violence, conflict, religious or ethnic discrimination and poverty. Roughly half of the asylum seekers came from Syria, Afghanistan and Iraq, where war and violence caused hundreds of thousands of people to flee their homes. Richard Hardigan is a professor at San Francisco State University. He has worked with refugees on the Greek islands of Lesbos and Samos, in the forests along the Balkan Route and on the rescue ships Sea Watch and SOS Humanity in the Central Mediterranean. Light breakfast served at 9am. Zoom: <https://bit.ly/uuforum-9-17-23> Info: www.uusf.org/forum

Weekly Grief Group meets on Saturdays from 10 am to 11:30 am in the Fahs Room

Facilitated by Bruce Clements we will meet weekly to create a space for conversation, community, and sharing about grief people are experiencing in their lives. This group is drop-in. Questions? After serving a church in Schenectady, New York, for seven years, he taught writing and literature at Union College, Schenectady, and the state university of Connecticut. Each week, we will have a new question to discuss in our group. On Sept. 16, people attending the Grief Group will be asked, "What did the person you loved lose when they passed away?"

Three-Part "White Fragility" Discussion Group - 9/28, 10/23 & 11/30 6:30 to 8pm (in person)

A classic for beginning to see frameworks for how to step into the work of seeing and undoing patterns that perpetuate white supremacy, the book "White Fragility" looks at both structures, but more so ways of thinking and behaving that reinforce the structures and culture of white supremacy. Robin DiAngelo's book is one that we recommend all members of UUSF not only read but participate in a discussion group around. Participants are asked to prepare for each session by reading the assigned chapters. Please RSVP to Vanessa if you want to be part of the three-part discussion. Vanessa's email is: VRSouthern@uusf.org.
